AUTHORS' PROFILE

Fahurdeen Sajeed Ahamed is an Attorney at Law with a Bachelor of Laws (LL.B) degree and a Master's degree in Human Rights from University of Colombo. He also holds a Master's degree in International Law and Human Rights from the University of Peace, Costa Rica and a Master's degree in Transdisciplinary Social Development from the Ateneo de Manila University, Philippines. He is a trainer, researcher, development practitioner, peacebuilder, human rights defender and a human rights education expert working with communities for more than 15 years. He was the National Coordinator of Sri Lanka for Equitas - International Centre for Human Rights Education from 2016 – 2019. He worked with IDPs and returnees in Sri Lanka and is an expert in human rights issues with the National Human Rights Commission of Sri Lanka. He worked with the UNDP as an access to justice expert for more than 5 years. His advocacy and litigation efforts for aggrieved persons have ensured justice for many disadvantaged people and communities. He is also a researcher and his research has helped to make positive changes in people's lives.

Ris Heskiel Najogi Sitinjak holds an MSc in Global Health and Development from University College London. His work focuses on understanding health as a complex system shaped by diverse social determinants. His current research interests include health rights and social sciences, community-based modelling, and digital health in community settings.

Silvi Angelia May Purba is a medical student from Universitas Riau, Indonesia. Her goal is to comprehend the intersectionality in health, driving her activities in policy advocacy, the right to health campaign, health financing, and community-based research. She championed digital health transformation in Indonesia, advocating for save and equitable electronic medical records.

Salma Majidah holds a BSc in Biomedical Engineering degree from Bandung Institute of Technology, Indonesia. She currently pursues MSc in International Health and Tropical Medicine in Oxford University. Her research interest lies in developing and translating technological innovation in healthcare sectors, including electrochemical biosensors and digital health intervention in the community.

Natasya Anggraeni Azis graduated from Jakarta Veteran National Development University with BSc in Public Health on Environmental Health concentration. She specialized in health data analysis, and how to utilize data for clinical decision. Her previous works includes research in environmental health and infectious diseases.

Sumant Kumar is presently teaching as an Associate Professor at the Department of Political Science, Alliance School of Liberal Arts, Alliance University, Bangalore. He had completed his PhD at Jawaharlal Nehru University, New Delhi.

Muhammad Novsyaroni Umar is a PhD Candidate at the University of Sydney and is researching disability activism funded by Indonesia's Ministry of Finance. At the university, he is a passionate casual academic (tutor/lecturer) and serves as the Postgraduate Representative at the Sydney Southeast Asia Centre, as well as a student member of the Centre for Disability Research and Policy. Born with a physical disability, in 2016, he became a disability activist and has been speaking at numerous national and international conferences. This paper was part of his achievement as the Best Paper award at the 7th Human Rights Conference. Presenting Indonesia's digital disability activism, he also won the Third Winner prize at the 2023 IDEAS PPI Australia. Professionally, he was awarded Indonesia's Public Relations ICON in 2020, having 5 years of industry experience.

Noor Dzuhaidah Osman is a senior law lecturer at the Faculty of Syariah and Law, Universiti Sains Islam Malaysia (USIM), with an extensive legal background as a former lawyer. She currently holds multiple key academic and administrative positions, including Coordinator of the PhD in Law program and a Committee Member for Biosecurity and Biosafety at USIM. Throughout her distinguished career, she has made significant contributions to academia and the legal profession. She has been a keynote and plenary speaker, panelist, and visiting professor at renowned institutions in various countries such as Russia, Turkey, and the UK. With an impressive portfolio of over 100 published newspaper articles and numerous scholarly journal articles, her research and expertise have garnered global recognition.Dr. Dzuhaidah has been the recipient of several prestigious accolades, including the ERASMUS Grant, a Centre for International Law scholarship, and the United Nations Regional Course in International Law Fellowship. She is an active member of the editorial boards of SCOPUS-indexed journals and holds professional memberships in esteemed organizations, such as the Society of Legal Scholars and the Biosafety and Biosecurity Associations.Her research interests are varied, covering critical areas such as biosafety and biosecurity law, international environmental law, bioethics, regulatory governance, Sharia law, and agricultural law. Dr. Osman's commitment to advancing knowledge and policy in these areas continues to inspire both academic and legal communities.

Syahirah Abdul Shukor is a distinguished law lecturer at the Faculty of Syariah and Law, Universiti Sains Islam Malaysia (USIM). She previously served as Dean of the Faculty of Syariah and Law and has built an impressive career in higher education. Her research interests span across Cyberlaw, Child Law, Legal Education, and Comparative Laws, with a particular focus on the relationship between Syariah and International laws. In 2015, she became a certified mediator under the Malaysian Bar Council, adding to her extensive list of qualifications. Dr. Syahirah is a prolific author, having written several books and numerous scholarly articles. Her expertise and contributions to the field have earned her invitations to speak at both national and international conferences, including engagements with the United Nations. Her work continues to impact legal education and the development of law in Malaysia and beyond.

Fareed Bin Mohd Hassan is an accomplished lecturer at the Faculty of Syariah and Law, Universiti Sains Islam Malaysia (USIM). He earned his PhD in Law from the University of Aberdeen, Scotland, in 2018, and also holds a Master of Comparative Laws from the International Islamic University Malaysia and a Bachelor of Syariah and Law from USIM. Dr. Fareed is a recognized expert in International Criminal Law, International Criminal Justice System, International Humanitarian Law, Public International Law, and Comparative Constitutional Law. His academic achievements have earned him numerous accolades, including appointments as a Visiting Professor at Jenderal Soedirman University and Universitas Jenderal Soedirman, as well as a Visiting Scholar at Universiti Sultan Zainal Abidin (UniSZA). In addition to his academic accomplishments, Dr. Fareed is an active participant in international legal forums and has become a sought-after speaker on various legal topics. His ongoing research and scholarly work continue to contribute to the advancement of legal knowledge and practice.

Nurfarhah Farhanim Binti Shafie, is a dedicated legal professional with a strong foundation in both civil and Shariah law. She completed her higher education at the International Islamic University Malaysia (IIUM), where she earned double degrees in Bachelor of Laws (LL.B.) and Bachelor of Laws (Shariah) (LLBS). After graduating, she undertook a 9-month chambering period at Nora Noreha & Hartini in Kota Bharu, Kelantan, and was admitted to the Malaysian Bar as an advocate and solicitor on August 5, 2019. In 2020, Nurfarhah gained valuable experience as a legal assistant at Hasif Kumar & Co, Pasir Mas, Kelantan. Subsequently, in 2021, she founded her own law firm, Farhah Farhanim & Co, where she practices as an advocate, solicitor, and Syarie lawyer, specializing in civil litigation, family law, and other legal matters.Driven by a passion for continuous learning, she is currently pursuing a Master's degree in Law at Universiti Sains Islam Malaysia (USIM), further expanding her legal expertise and reinforcing her commitment to excellence in the legal field.